Student/Intern: Online Marketing

- Volunteer Role for a final year or postgraduate Marketing student
- Melbourne CBD
- Leading not-for-profit
- A supportive working environment
- Opportunity to develop your skills and manage a small project

International Social Service (ISS) Australia is the leading provider of international social work services and is seeking a senior Marketing student to develop its online marketing.

ISS is a not-for-profit organisation providing inter-country social work services to families separated by international borders, with a special emphasis on children's rights. ISS Australia forms part of the ISS international network spanning over 150 countries worldwide. This position is in the National Office, Melbourne.

The successful candidate will be a final year or postgraduate Marketing student (graduates are also welcome). Experience in online marketing and ability to engage potential supporters is highly desirable. The successful candidate will be able to work both autonomously and as a collaborative member of a small supportive team.

Online Marketing has not been pursued previously by ISS Australia. Providing the student utilises pre-approved language and develops an online marketing plan (that would be collaboratively monitored), they will have a great deal of scope to be creative as well as have general management of this project.

There may be some additional marketing related administration tasks required.

The position is on a voluntary basis and for a minimum of 20 days (consecutive or weekly depending on the availability of the student).

To apply, please submit a brief statement (no more than 1 page) addressing the above points and a current resume including two professional referees. For more information, please call (03) 9614 8755.

Applications should be sent to Jessica Redwood, Business Development Manager, via jessica.redwood@iss.org.au .
